Tore Rinkveld aka Evol, is a German artist, born in 1972. He currently lives and works between Berlin, Germany and Moscow, Russia. He completed his education at Kuopio Academy of Arts and Crafts, Finland in 2000 and at HFG Schwäbisch Gmünd, Germany in 2001.

Evol's artworks, created on found cardboard boxes, celebrate the architecture of an earlier time - the simple Berlin townhouses built around 1910. These ordinary buildings are typical of the neighbourhood the artist has lived in for years - relics of a bygone era that have not yet succumbed to the gentrification sweeping the area. The cardboard provides a rich patina on which to stencil, with existing marks and structures reflecting the passage of time on the walls. The printed graphics, tape and other minute details found on the cardboard also echo the distressed nature and visual pollution of real urban landscapes. In both his studio-based works and his temporary street installations, Evol reduces the environment that surrounds us to bite-sized pieces. Through this reversal of scale, he somehow renders the work harmless: while evoking a stark urban environment, they remain charming and approachable. Drawing on his background in graffiti, he uses his artistic skills to explore the inner workings of the city and makes us look at our surroundings in a new light.

Tulio Pinto is a Brazilian artist, born in 1974 and he currently lives and works in Porto Alegre, Brazil. He graduated in 2009 from UFRGS - Federal University of Rio Grande do Sul with a degree in visual arts, specialising in sculpture.

Pinto is interested in all contingent, changeable, temporary materials - an approach that could seem to contradict the parameters of accepted norms in sculpting, if it was not for the long tradition that came from Russian Constructivism.

He does not customarily use traditional tools in his pieces, nor does he sculpt or shape anything. Instead, Pinto obtains the pieces in their natural condition and establishes an unstable interaction with different factors, such as weight, density and dimension.

He transforms differences into a sculpting result that is novel, innovative and unexpected. The constant target that the artist reinforces, is the materialisation of the invisible force of gravity - something we feel, but do not see, despite the fact that it overpowers all and everyone in the world.

A 2018 graduate of La Cambre, and winner of the 2018 Woluwe-Saint-Pierre Arts Prize for Drawing and Painting, Robin Wen lives and works in Brussels. The artist's pictorial practice explores the world of the Free Party through its lifestyle, that of a youth in search of freedom. An initially documentary approach. Using her personal archives or objects from her daily life, Robin Wen deals with the fragility and violence of this milieu with strength and sensitivity.

His paintings have become "anthropological objects" and bear witness to a universe that oscillates between the fantastic and the realistic. This practice is part of the tradition of genre painting, which the artist hijacks and reappropriates.

Sound manifestations like a cry in the void. Robin Wen presents allegorical images of "free parties", contemporary clandestine musical itinerants, tribal and rural, whose codes and rites he appropriates to reveal them to us in part in his polymorphic work. One of the perceptible manifestations in his paintings, drawings and installation, is to make us feel the bass of the "tribe" muffled as if they reached us in a prenatal cocoon. Starting from scenes constituted from pre-existing images (photos) or manufactured (memories), he mixes references to ancient painting (draperies, still lifes, hunting scenes, triptych) with his own experience, his own sensations, his own pulsations.

Selected exhibitions :

Free party - Tour à Plomb, Bruxelles BE (2022), Rituels électronique - Soundsystems SciencesPo Paris, Saint-Denis, FR (2022), 11 Years of residencies (Fondation privée du Carrefour des Arts), BE (2022), Insomnie - Fondation Moonens, Bruxelles, BE (2021), Rave on - Galerie Le[Cloître], Bruxelles, BE (2020), URGENCE - KANAL Centre Pompidou, Bruxelles, BE (2019),
